

Lesson Plan

NEUROHEADWAY

Neuroscience Into Education

Write a short paragraph expressing your opinion about the characteristics that a person should have in order to maintain adequate and respectful relationships in their family, with school friends, with friends and with strangers.

Then a discussion will take place in the classroom led by the teacher, where the opinions of the students will be discussed.

At the end of the power point presentation, the teacher will give each student a sheet with the following questions:

1. What are interpersonal relationships?
2. What are intrapersonal relationships?
3. Do you consider intrapersonal relationships correct?
4. Name some types of interpersonal relationships.

The teacher will rate the students' responses and this will allow them to evaluate the students' understanding of the subject studied and the fulfillment of the class objectives.

Power point Example

NEUROHEADWAY

Neuroscience Into Education

INTERPERSONAL RELATIONSHIPS

These associations can be based on emotions and feelings, such as love and artistic taste, interest in business and social activities, interactions and collaborative forms in the home, among others.

Interpersonal relationships take place in a wide variety of contexts, such as family, groups of friends, marriage, work environments, social and sports clubs, religious communities and all kinds of contexts where there are two or more people in communication.

DIFFERENT TYPES OF INTERPERSONAL RELATIONS

Interpersonal relationships are many and varied, a person can know different types of them or a few. Among the most common we should mention family relationships (the first that a person establishes and those that mark him for life), relationships of friendship, couple, work, etc.

ALL OF THESE RELATIONS NUTRATE THE PERSON AS EACH OF THEM OF THEY PROVIDE ELEMENTS THAT WILL DETERMINE THE CHARACTER AND THE PERSONALITY OF THE INDIVIDUAL.

Teachers Evaluation and Handouts

NEUROHEADWAY

Neuroscience Into Education

INTERPERSONAL DIPLOMACY

Diplomacy is not necessarily linked to trade relations or international relations, as it is also applicable in other circles.

IT REFERS TO THE TOUCH AND THE PRUDENCE THAT IT IS ALWAYS GOOD TO HAVE EFFECTS FOR THE INTERPERSONAL RELATIONS TO DEVELOP IN HARMONY.

We must all assume a diplomatic role in our relations with others, and even in the family, we must be governed by principles, educational values and even etiquette (social conventions) typical of a civilized society, aspects that enrich interpersonal diplomacy.

INTERPERSONAL RELATIONS: FUNDAMENTAL ROLE IN THE INTEGRAL DEVELOPMENT OF PEOPLE

Interpersonal relationships can be regulated by law, by custom or by mutual agreement, and are a basis or a fundamental framework of social groups and society as a whole.

These relationships play a fundamental role in the integral development of people. Through them, the individual obtains important social reinforcements from the immediate environment, which favors their adaptation and integration to it.